

5 Tips For Paragraphing Your Argumentative Essay - 2021 Guide

Essays are made a part of every field. Wherever you go, you will find the need to write an essay. Effective writing skills are not just required in school or college, where students are mostly asked to write an essay. For example, students who want to get admission to their dream college are asked to write a personal statement or an essay describing who they are, for that they should possess effective writing skills. Moreover, a friend who wants to write a letter to his friend also needs to have good writing skills to convey his view and emotions clearly to his friend. Further, people who want to get a job in writing services like cheap essay writing service or free essay writing services should also possess effective writing skills. These examples show that everyone should possess good writing skills.

With time several types of essays have been introduced, such as persuasive essay, rhetorical essay, argumentative essay, expository essay, etc. Each essay type has some specific purpose which makes it different and unique from all other types of essays. An argumentative essay as its name implies, presents arguments on a perspective or stance chosen by the writer. The writer in an argumentative essay supports his/her perspective by mentioning several arguments to convince the reader with his/her stance. Not only this, the writer supports his/her arguments with evidence from research studies. Convincing others to accept your stance or perspective is not an easy task that is why writing argumentative essays are not that easy. Proper knowledge of the topic, an effective presentation of your arguments, your way of conveying things to the reader, the organization of your essay, and many other things are required to attract your readers and convince them to accept your stance or perspective.

5 things to know about paragraphing argumentative essays

With all the mentioned things in the cheapest essay writing service article the flow of information in an argumentative essay has a great impact on the essay. By the flow of information, we mean how to divide your essay into paragraphs, which information to include in the first paragraph and how to present your arguments, etc. The very first paragraph of an argumentative essay should be the introduction paragraph, this paragraph should introduce your topic to the audience with a hook that compels them to read more. The introduction paragraph should end with an effective and outstandingly written thesis statement. In the next paragraph present your first argument to the reader and support it with evidence. In the third paragraph present your second argument with evidence in front of the reader, include more paragraphs if you have more arguments to present. At the end include the conclusion paragraph in which summarizes all your arguments and drives a conclusion based on your thesis statement. Moreover, there are some things that a writer needs to know while paragraphing an argumentative essay. Among them, 5 things are the most important for you to consider. These 5 things are mentioned below:

1. Only one main idea or argument should be included in one paragraph. Do not include more than one argument or idea in a single paragraph.
2. Each paragraph should be at least 5 lines that are around 80 words. And it should maximum be 150 words. Your paragraph should not be so small or so long because it destroys the evenness of your essay.
3. Each page should include at least 3 typed paragraphs.
4. Paragraphs should be proportional to the essay.
5. If your essay involves very short paragraphs think of combining them with other paragraphs with the ideas of two matches together or add more information to support your argument.

These were 5 things that should be considered by writers while paragraphing an argumentative essay. However, students can take help from their instructors or services like a free essay writing service whenever they are stuck somewhere.